Drawn on Stone: Political Prints from the 1830s and 1840s on exhibit at the Thompson Library, Philip Sills Exhibit Hall from December 19, 2005 - March 19, 2006. This exhibition features thirty lithographed political prints from the 1830s and 1840s, which are recent acquisitions of the Cartoon Research Library, purchased with support from the William J. Studer endowment. Twenty-seven of the prints were issued by H.R. Robinson, the leading publisher of political cartoons during this time period. They were drawn by different artists including E.W. Clay and Napoleon Sarony. This extraordinary collection illustrates the surge in the creation and distribution of political cartoon broadsides made possible by the relative ease and speed of the new print-making process of lithography. Drawn on Stone is curated by Jenny Robb, visiting assistant curator at the Cartoon Research Library.

Jessica Caldwell-Lehr will be starting as a contract (temporary) reference assistant at the Thompson Library Reference Desk on Tue., Jan. 3rd. Her hours will be Mon.-Thu., 4-10 p.m. and Sat. 1-5p.m. Please stop by and say hi to her if you're passing through.

John M. Bennett, Rare Books & MSS Library, has published a long collaborative poem as a chapbook, LAP GUN CUT, John M. Bennett & F. A. Nettelbeck, Columbus: Luna Bisonte Prods, 2006.
